

Using World of Warcraft via HTTP-Tunnel

5/11/10

***** Using this document assumes you have HTTP-Tunnel client properly setup and it works fine for other programs.*****

This has been tested with Proxifier version: 2.8

First off download the program "Proxifier" from www.proxifier.com:

Proxifier comes with a 31 day free trial.

You may want to consider purchasing Proxifier if this set up work for you.

Install and Run Proxifier

Once at the main menu as depicted in the picture.

Click " Options "

Then Click "Proxy Settings" "

Click the Add button in the Proxy Settings window.

Enter the values shown in the Proxy Server Window.

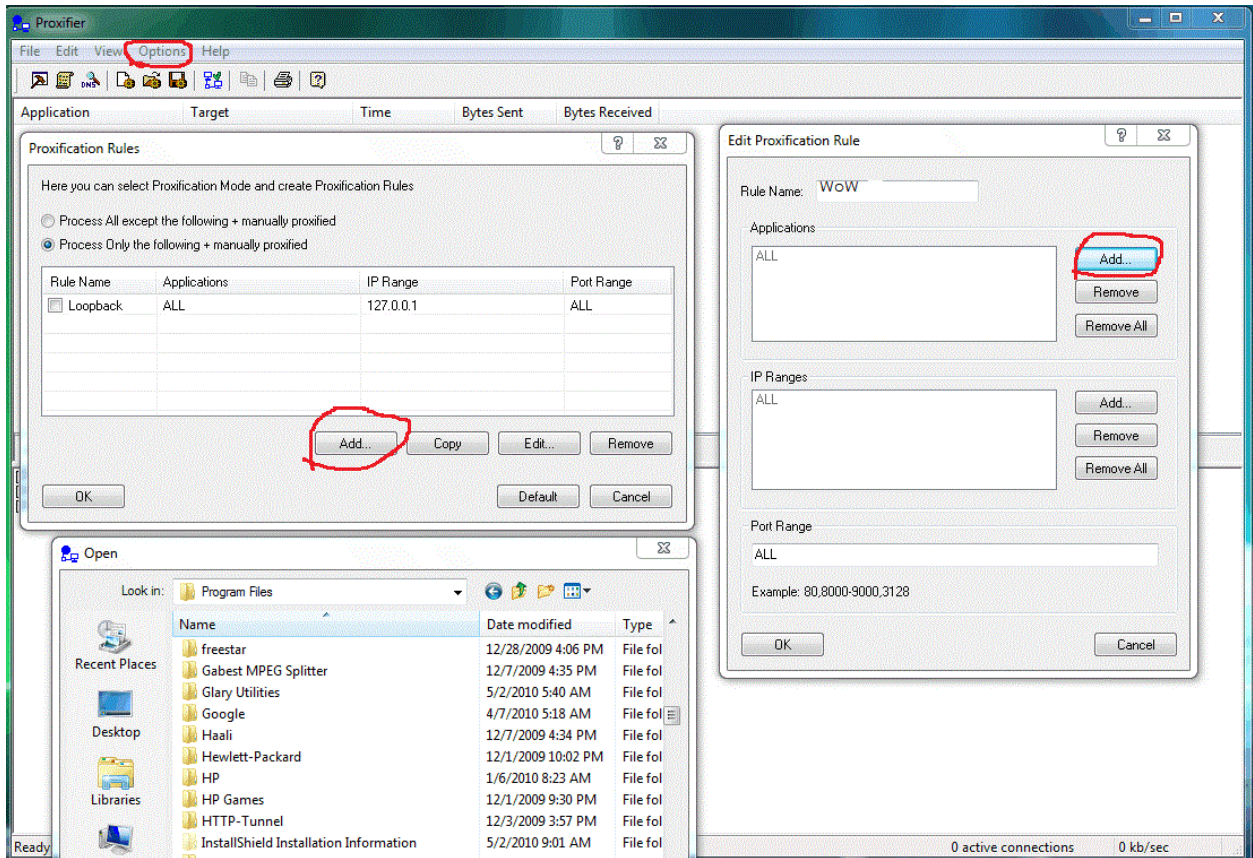

Press "OK" and then "OK" again to bring you back to the main program screen.

Next

From Proxifier Click on Option "The Proxification Rules Window Appears.

Put a dot in: Proxify only the following + manually Proxified.

Click add from the Proxification Rules Window. The Edit Proxification Rule Window appears. Name your rule WoW.

Next Click Add from Applications in the Edit Proxification Rule Window.

Next navigate to your World ofWarcraft folder, and select "Launcher.exe" and select "Open".

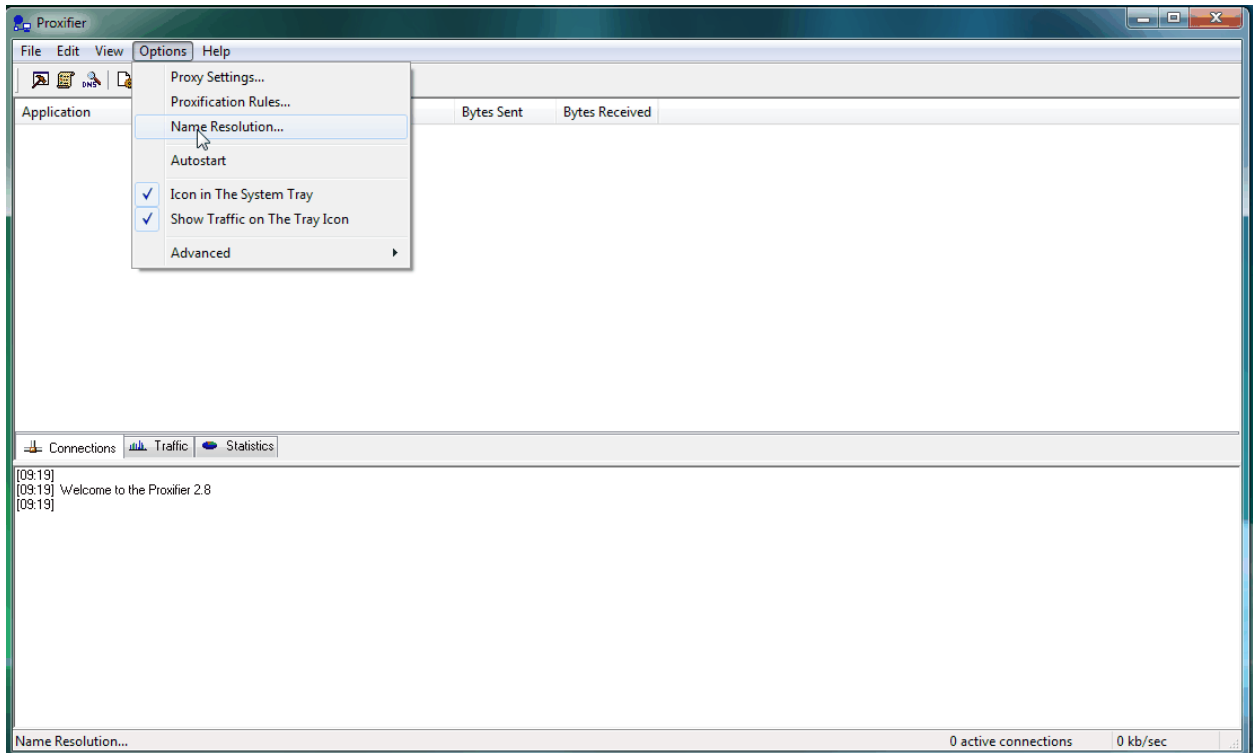

Next repeat the above process and select "WoW.exe"

Your screen should now look EXACTLY like this:

Select the Oks as you exit.

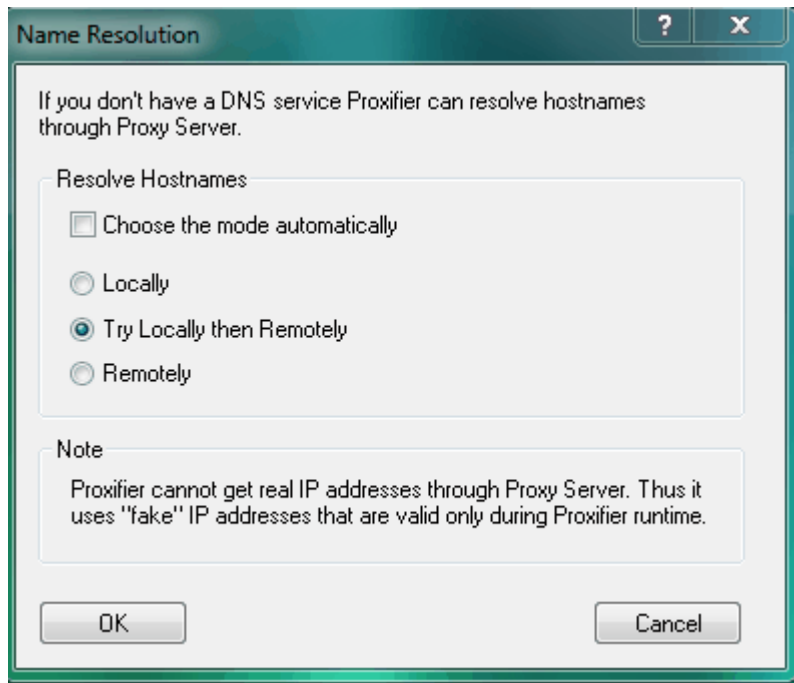

Next: From the main screen of Proxifier Select Options and Click on " Name Resolution.

The Name Resolution Window appears. Put a dot in.

“ Try Locally the Remotely ”

Click the Oks as you exit.

Now:

Open the ( your ) windows hosts file with Notepad. Your hosts file can be found here:
C:\Windows\System32\drivers\

etc ( If you need help with you host file email support for a few pointers. )

Add either of these 2 lines which ever is appropriate.

127.0.0.1 localhost < You should already have that line entered

Now enter either one of these, again, whichever is appropriate.

213.248.127.130 eu.logon.battle.net

12.129.206.130 us.logon.battle.net

So it looks like this:

127.0.0.1 localhost

213.248.127.130 eu.logon.battle.net

Or This:

127.0.0.1 localhost

12.129.206.130 us.logon.battle.net

Save in Notepad and exit.

Exit and restart Proxifier. Start the tunnel client.

Run WoW from the Desktop icon.